

The rails of the new electric road are being laid, and the rolling stock is expected within a few days.

The work on the new Government cable was completed for a few days on account of lack of material. It is expected, however, that it will be completed and in working order either today or tomorrow. The cable is highly approved by all. The principal office on the island will be a sub-station at another part of the island.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Browster, of Hartford, Conn., arrived at the Ocean View for the season. Mrs. Laura A. Stewart, of Newark, N. J., has just completed a Swiss cottage on Mohican Bluffs. IN THE NORTH WOODS.

SUMMER DELIGHTS ENJOYED BY THE THROGHS OF VISITORS.

GOLF THE CHIEF SOURCE OF AMUSEMENT ALMOST EVERYWHERE—OTHER FORMS OF AMUSEMENT—NOTES OF ARRIVALS.

Lake Placid, July 16 (Special).—The delightful season of last week still continues with all its summer charms of bright blue sky, emerald-green mountains and sparkling lakes, but in contrast to this, and as if mocking at the torrid condition of the surrounding country, during the last week there has actually been frost on several nights in different parts of the mountains. This is very unusual for July, although it is generally expected to occur in August. The universally cool evenings and nights not only refresh the atmosphere, but are also a small loss to the great opportunity to stay in the most of the hotels have in their private rooms, and the little clear tinkles of fame not only temper the air, but are also pleasant to watch, having an air of sociability and cozy comfort.

STEVENS HOUSE.

The big Stevens House is getting livelier every day as additional guests arrive, and its parlors and extensive piazzas already present a well-filled appearance. Tennis and baseball have so far been the favorite pastimes, but the golf links are now in order and are beginning to exert their attractions. Excursions on the lake, either by the steamer or in rowboats, are always popular, but eaching parties are now being arranged daily, and almost every afternoon the handsome Stevens House four-in-hand carries a jolly party over some of the many attractive drives in the neighborhood. Fishing has attracted a large number of anglers, and several large catches of brook trout have been brought in, while the number of the strings of brook trout have rewarded the efforts of the patient sportsmen who have sought out their quiet retreats in the tangled forests.

The regular Sunday evening concert has begun at the Stevens, and last week the programme included, besides selected numbers by the Stevens House Trio, some fine solos by Holden Chandler, basso, and a deservedly applauded cello solo by Miss Dressler. On Monday evening a party of students from Wesleyan University, who are staying at a neighboring camp, were visitors at the Stevens, and a fine quartet sang a number of ballads and popular songs.

Among the guests at the Stevens House are Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. David S. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Lawlor, Mrs. T. de la Revere, Miss A. V. Phipps, Miss Koffman, Thomas F. Mayhew and Misses Sarah and Esther Mayhew, of New-York; Buchanan Whitcomb, whose family have a cottage at Newport this summer, is making this his headquarters, and is doing the mountains in a most enthusiastic way. Another guest is E. D. McDermott, ex-Mayor of Providence, who is spending the season here with his family.

THE RUSSEAU MOUNT.

At the Rousseau mount everything is a-ting with the season's pleasures. During the day golf and boating claim the devotees to outdoor sports, while the evenings are gay with music and dancing in the handsome ballroom.

The Rousseau mounters hold the champion silver cup for the season, and for each season, and it is not without reason that they are so successful in the race, which takes place in August, among whom are William A. Putnam, Charles H. Elmer and Malcolm McDonald, all of Columbia University, and W. S. Johnson, Jr., of Yale. The Rousseau mount Club has been organized, and its membership is fast filling up.

Among the recent arrivals at the Rousseau mount are J. W. Clark and the Messrs. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Dwyer, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Wintlingham, of Brooklyn, and James A. Logan, attorney for the Pennsylvania Railroad, of Philadelphia.

THE GRAND VIEW.

The Grand View is rapidly filling up, and its wide piazzas and great parlor are assuming an air of sociability and pleasure in accordance with its traditions, and in the evening the music in the ballroom attracts many, especially the younger people. The daily concerts have proved enjoyable, and the music is of an unusually high quality and finely performed.

Among the New-York guests registered at the Grand View are Mrs. H. M. F. Harding and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Reed, Charles H. Phelps and family, Miss Juliet Pearson, and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Marcellus, of Brooklyn. Professor George D. Hale and family, of Rochester, have taken up their residence in one of the hotel cottages.

THE LAKE PLACID.

The Lake Placid House has at last opened its doors, and its friends will hardly regret their delay in reaching this pleasant home, for it has been so enlarged and remodelled that little of the old structure is left. It is now a fine four-story structure, of ornamental appearance, and fitted with every modern convenience, while the furnishing is entirely new. Although late in completing its reconstruction, there is every prospect of a lively and pleasant season.

ATLANTIC CITY'S NOTED VISITOR.

BY GIVING A LITTLE HE EXPECTED GET MUCH FROM RUSSIA.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 16 (Special).—This city has been honored during the last ten days by the presence of a notable visitor. He is Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese Envoy to the United States, who is a guest at the Hotel Radford. The distinguished Chinaman has become a familiar figure along the boardwalk and in other places. He goes everywhere and sees and is seen. Those who have been fortunate enough to make the acquaintance of Wu Ting Fang have found him a genial man, who speaks excellent English, and is of far more than average intelligence.

Mr. Wu has been a close student of American affairs and customs, and, indeed, his visit here was partly the outcome of a desire to mingle more freely with the people. He is democratic in his ideas. He is anxious to conform to American customs, as is shown by an incident which occurred during one of the regular hops at the hotel. Mr. Wu expressed a desire to join them. He soon found a partner in the person of Miss Maude Birchwell, a young woman who is a guest at the same hotel, and whose acquaintance he had made some time since. The flowing robes worn by Wu Ting Fang would seem scarcely suitable for the quickly moving two-step, and Mr. Wu was handicapped by the fact that the first American dance was not his forte. He did well. A couple of turns around the ballroom satisfied him, but he has announced his intention of learning more about dancing in the American manner. Miss Birchwell is in all probability the first American girl who has danced with a Chinaman of Wu Ting Fang's exalted rank, and she is proud of the honor.

Any day is likely to be called back to Washington any day, but he will probably return to this city later in the season.

The usual round of entertainments this week. Dances continue to lead in popularity, although there has been something of a revival of progressive dances, which during the week a number of these latter affairs have been given at the various hotels, and they have been uniformly enjoyable. The prices in many places were both handsome and valuable. The regular hops at the Hotel Radford are still attended by hundreds of the most fashionable visitors and residents. At the Casino brilliant affairs are given every Wednesday and Saturday evening, while the public dances at the other hotels are equally popular. Semiprivate dances are also given at a number of the leading hotels nearly every evening. The most fashionable visitors and residents are shown and entertainments of all sorts along the boardwalk, to say nothing of bathing, fishing, sailing and other sports. There are few opportunities for dullness here.
